

Domestic Violence Action Center Welcome Three New Members to its Board of Directors

HONOLULU, HI (June 25, 2024) – The Domestic Violence Action Center (DVAC), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit agency bringing hope and healing to Hawaii’s survivors of domestic and intimate partner violence and their families, including marginalized communities, is pleased to announce three new members of its board of directors.

Lindsay Chambers is the Vice President and Public Relations Manager at First Hawaiian Bank, overseeing corporate communications and experiential marketing. Previously, she directed communications for the Hawai’i Department of Education. Her background includes roles at Stryker Weiner & Yokota Public Relations and the Hawai’i Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs. Chambers holds a Master of Business Administration and a Bachelor of Arts in English from the University of Hawai’i at Mānoa.

Tricia Fetui is Vice President of Events and Business Development and Executive Director of the Young Professionals (YP) Program at the Chamber of Commerce Hawaii where she oversees the organization’s events, membership department, and YP Program. Her background includes roles at Aloha Council Boy Scouts Hawaii, Guam and American Samoa, March of Dimes Hawaii, and The Queen’s Health Systems. In addition to serving on DVAC’s board, Fetui is a member of the Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives Advisory Council. Among her many honors was inclusion in Pacific Business News’s 2023 “Women Who Mean Business.” She received her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and Management from Hope International University in Fullerton, CA.

Matthew Hunter is Senior Vice President and Director of Talent Management & Development at Central Pacific Bank where he identifies, attracts, and develops talent. His previous roles include Training Manager and Operational Supervisor at a luxury 5-star, 5-Diamond resort on the mainland and Senior Vice President and Director of Learning Development & Strategic Business Partners at Bank of Hawaii. Hunter, who has over 20 years of human resources experience, received his Bachelor of Arts in Sociology & Criminology and a Master of Arts in Organizational Communication from the University of Hawai’i at Mānoa. In 2025, he will pursue a PhD in Organization & Management with an emphasis in Leadership.

Established in 1991, the Domestic Violence Action Center (DVAC) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit bringing hope and healing to Hawaii’s survivors of domestic and intimate partner violence and their families, including marginalized communities. DVAC is the only agency of its kind in Hawaii for which 100% of its focus is helping survivors of domestic violence or those affected by it. We deliver culturally sensitive programs with integrity and compassion, ultimately fostering self-sufficiency and a better quality of life for domestic violence survivors and their families.
